

Dear Mark.

9/25/75

They've renumbered the routes and we are now on 12.

You don't really know what indexing is. You should see the one my wife is into!

But what you did was of help to Jim and will become part of a permanent index I am gradually assembling. I've had occasional help and when possible used it to first order and then consolidate the cards to the indexes to all the books. It will become a valuable research tool in time. ss

I appreciate the offer of help ~~but~~ would Jim. He is over loaded one way, I another, and you can't really help with our immediate and urgent needs. He is behind on filing the appeal, partly from harassment and a new suit for evidence by CBS, whose purposes are commercial, not evidentiary. I'm trying to complete an overdue book.

I'd thought you'd be going back to school before now.

Right now when I need both help and the time to do some myself is in physical work, getting ready for the cold weather. (I rather enjoy it and it is good for me.)

You are the wrong sex for one of Jim's immediate needs - a baby-sitter.

Until I get this immediate project off my back I won't be able to stop and think of the help I can use, but thanks. If you come across anything you think might interest me I'd welcome a copy, of course.

Thanks and best,
